MAINE'S FEDERAL AID FUND IS ANNOUNCED

A total of $23,687,222 in federal and state matching funds has been authorized for road-building in Maine during the year beginning July 1, 1957.

Also revealed in information obtained from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads were the counties to be crossed by a new national highway system.

The Bureau's latest blueprint takes the 41,000-mile network into these counties: Aroostook, Penobscot, Cumberland, Waldo, York, Kennebec and Androscoggin.

While all expressway routes have not been finalized, the goal is to link every U. S. city that has 50,000 or more population.

The state's total of funds for the next 12 months is divided as follows:

U. S. Interstate	$15,222,222
Secondary System	$2,565,000
Primary System	$4,400,000
Urban Highways	$1,500,000

Total $23,687,222

The expenditures are a portion of history's greatest public works undertaking. More than $100 billion is to be invested in the nation's highway program by 1970, including local government work.

COMMITTEE STARTS

PLANNING FOR BIGGEST

BAZAAR DAY IN HISTORY

The fund-raising committee of the Bethel Health and Service Council, Inc., is starting to make its plans for what it hopes will be the most successful BAZAAR DAY on July 27. Now that the scope and activities of the new organization cover so many more basic problems it is necessary to increase the funds available to work with.

Any suggestion for new booths or new activities that will attract a larger crowd and raise more money will be welcomed by the committee, as anyone with a good idea will be doing everyone a favor if he or she will contact either of the co-chairmen, Miss Eva Bean or Rev. Clifford Laws, and give them the benefit of their idea. If we all work together we can make this year the best ever, so let's get on with it!

Mr. and Mrs. William Day of Scarborough were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Morrill and family.

Miss Ralph Berry was in Presque Isle Tuesday and Wednesday attending the capping exercise of her daughter, Glenice Berry.

Miss Lucia Feltier was honored at a surprise "going-away" party, given by Miss Tirah Bean, at her home on Main Street, Saturday afternoon. Miss Feltier received many nice gifts and a supper was enjoyed by the guests. Attending were Louise Lincoln, Nikki McMillan, Dixie Lee Brown, Linda Freeman, Claire Berry, Carolyn Chapman, Jewel Bean, the honored guest and the hostess.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The time has arrived when it becomes necessary to file tax liens with the Registry of Deeds to secure all unpaid real estate taxes.

The ten day notices will be sent out on June 12th, if the tax is not paid by June 26th the lien will be recorded on that date. This will be the last opportunity for persons owing real estate taxes to pay without having extra costs. A tax lien has a redemption period of eighteen months from date of filing. At the end of this period it automatically expires and title of the property rests in the hands of the town to be disposed of at the discretion of the municipal officers.

Last week a test was made on Tyler Street to see how the soil-cement was curing. It was found that the cement has become as hard as anticipated and will continue to harden some more as it still shows a moisture content. Plans call for a mulch black top as a wearing surface, to be placed during the current tarring season.

Sincerely yours,
Harold L. Bean

It was reported that there are to be two new doors going into the new back room, one from the kitchen and one from the furnace room. There is to be a Daily Vacation Bible School for two weeks this summer beginning July 8 for children ages 4-14. Mrs. Duncan Moore is to be the director. One delegate will be sent to the School of Missions which will be at the Atlantic House, Scarborough, Sept. 6-7. The next meeting will be held at the church with the installation of officers. The nominating committee is Rachel MacKay, Virginia Walker, and Mabel Grosvenor.

ACROSS the DESK

From the Bethel Chronicle, Bethel, Ohio: We're always a little uncomfortable around these reformers who want to rearrange the holidays and other national observances. Usually they want them all to fall on Monday, to stress "everybody" a three-day weekend.

By "everybody" they mean Congress and their security-conscious, who have always had a long weekend.

They will expect power, television, radio, and other services to continue as usual. They will expect restaurants to have all regular help plus holiday extras for their long weekend. Trains, buses, and air lines will face angry lines of these advanced thinkers who believe in long holidays for "everybody."

Yet a large section of our population deals in services. Some of them haven't had three consecutive days off since leaving school. They are off for the school year.

We recall the local minister who forewarned a boy and his sister of a garage about which he was pulling teeth after church on Sunday. He set a bad example. But when this same man discovered his car wouldn't start one Sunday after services, he had no compunction about dragging the garage owner from his Sunday dinner for immediate examination of the vehicle.

The reformers may get their long holidays in Ohio. But the laws will still be on the books, and humans will be served, and out society will develop a little wider split between those who work when there is work to be done and those who would legislate their way to leisure.

From the South Pasadena Review, South Pasadena, Calif: There is one phase of the tax problem which deserves more attention than it has been getting. That is what excessive taxation will do to future employment and opportunity in this country.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has pointed out that our labor force is growing by almost 15 million people a year. But, he says, if the government keeps on taking as much money out of the economy as it does now, there won't be sufficient capital available to pay for the industrial expansion needed to create jobs for all these new workers.

The tax problem isn't just limited to how much we must pay this year or next. It is creating a long shadow on our children's future.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Three concepts — peace, justice and liberty underlie the foreign policy of the United States. The task is to realize these concepts in a world of rapid and accelerating change.

This was said early in a speech by Secretary of State Dulles, made at the recent annual luncheon of the American Peace Union. It is a speech of great interest, in that it expresses the Administration's attitude toward the world as it stands today. The world is being vigorously debated, and is subjected to both heavy attack and aggressive defense.

That policy, as Dulles explains, is not based upon attempts to preserve the status quo. It recognizes that change is a law of life. Therefore, we seek to assure that change will be benign and not destructive, so that it will promote not merely survival but freedom and well-being. A final requirement then is that the door be firmly closed to change by violent aggression.

The collective security system is designed to accomplish that. Dulles certainly does not regard it as perfect, as he says, "It is subject to attack from without and to disintegration within." But he clearly feels that it is a working arrangement as well as can be expected, that it is and will remain the cornerstone of free world policy.

Part of this policy and the principle behind it is that we are in a world of rapid change. This is not a matter of manufacturing base changes or military effects alone, but of the means to take them to possible targets. It may well be that we are in for an era of as-called "little wars." Thus, there must be many kinds of weapons, along with forces capable of local action. The cost of weapons is almost unbelievably high today, and many of them become obsolete almost as soon as they are produced. That fact brings Mr. Dulles to defense of the Administration's policy of supplying military equipment to allies. The United States, he says, is the only free world country able to maintain the cost of developing a capacity for retaliation adequate to deter a potential aggressor who himself has great and growing aggressive power.

What this amounts to is an arms race. We have been forced into that. But no one, Mr. Dulles insists, of all, thinks such a race with the Russians is a real solution to anything. As he puts it, "An arms race is costly, sterile and dangerous. So U. S. policy is pledged to bring the race to an end if and when that may be possible."

One of the great political changes of all time has occurred in the last decade. In that short period, the free world orbit has new nations with a total population of 150 million people have been created. Other nations have gained full or partial sovereignty. Of these Mr. Dulles states, "We want the new independence of others to be something better than a brief twilight preceding the black-out of Communist despotism."

Mr. Dulles goes into details as to specific points of our policy — some of which are highly controversial. He states we are generally accepted by the world, and we can, despite the odds, successfully "sweep peace" and prevent all-out nuclear war. He says, "Surely our nations did not reach a new peak of power and responsibility merely by chance of the greatest, and perhaps the last of all human endeavors. If only we are faithful to our task, we shall not have to fear our future. The cause of peace, justice and liberty need not fail and need not fail."

Congressman ROBERT HALE

Foreign aid — last week the President spoke out strongly for his foreign aid program which has been under violent attack ever since the first of this year. I was pleased to have him speak out, even if I fear he did so rather hesitantly.

The President did a commendable job of pointing to the numerous failures for foreign aid. He pointed out that it does more than help foreign countries in the fight against Communism. The vital point is that it contributes to our own national security. A substantial cut in this aid could lead to Chemical weed killers can save Maine farmers hours of labor in cultivating. Later findings on chemical weed control are included in Miscellaneous Publication 828, "Chemical Weed Killers—1957." The Maine Agricultural Experiment Station and the Extension Service issued the bulletin jointly. Copies may be obtained from county agents of the Extension Service or by writing the Bulletin Office, Extension Service, University of Maine, Orono.

The need for more defense expenditures on our part.

The opposition seems to have died down somewhat since the President's appeal, and the public response has been favorable. His mail is reported to be running 8 to 1 in support of his position.

I have received perhaps more letters this year than ever before urging a curtailment of foreign aid—ending what many people call the "giveaway program." I sympathize with the desire to economize whenever and wherever possible. I am as much opposed as anyone to throwing away money. I have repeatedly said that I will vote for no program not directly related to our national security.

We should not, however, allow ourselves to be so intrigued by budget cuts as to lose sight of national security. It's better to spend money to insure premiums than to have even a minor conflagration.

Heaver Commission Savings: A billion in taxpayers of over $18 billion is said to have resulted thus far from recommendations of the Heaver Commission. The Children's Committee for the Heaver Report said recently that only 36 percent of the second commission's recommendations have been adopted to date; as much can still be done to effect additional savings in Government.

OTC Committee DGM: It looks now as if the Organization for Trade Cooperation (OTC) will be allowed to use a natural death. The House Ways and Means Committee has scheduled no action on the matter, and no one seems to be complaining about it.

Our members in OTC are sought to strengthen the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). The latter is an agreement between 36 nations (the United States included) devoted to the principle of tariff reduction.

When we look at the depressed status of certain industries in Maine it seems that lower tariffs are about the last thing we need. I oppose the OTC legislation in the last Congress and shall do so in this.

Sanitary: Rather than decrease, sanitary rates seem to be appreciably needed on waste products. Five members of the Maine delegation and I wrote to the President last week pointing out that imports threaten to exceed 5 per cent of our own domestic products in the preceding three years.

We reminded him that under the General West Pacific Reservation the United States reserves the right to increase duties to 45 per cent at discretion when imports exceed the 5 per cent "threshold." The President last week said that he will do so again in 1957.

Tidal Power: The Corps of Engineers has informed me that rapid progress is being made on underwater investigations of the International Project on the northeastern coast.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER
CHANGELING HAY

THE present month is usually known, in our part of the world, as a time of balm and bloom and beauty. But the poet thought of days of storm and grief as "bringing their burden" to the present. And he asked if, after the stormy changes, we should not be a "changeling May"? Days of the past sometimes reach into the present with dread results. The accumulation of bad things may bring their influences to blight you in the present. On the calendar the past is gone forever, but the heart feels the hurt of the grace of God, given by faith, is influenced toward wrong today.

As you sit alone with your thought and dark images come to vex you and tax your strength, do not yield again to the unworthy thing that may bring shadows to your memories. But cling to the bright images that you find along the way. In true penitence and the high resolves of faith, you may find strength for your time of need.

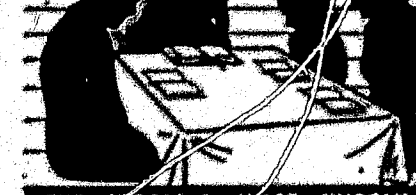

So you may find a changeling May and a peace that is unaffected by all changes of weather.

cast of Maine.

The Maine Delegation put up a successful fight on the House floor to save this appropriation which would benefit all of Maine. The House finally approved $996,000 for fiscal 1958, and this amount was increased by $400,000 in the Senate. The bill is now before a conference committee in which the two figures will be reconciled.

TODAY'S Meditation

Chapman Room
THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, May 30
Read Isaiah 53:1-3.
"The Son of man came to seek and to save the lost." (Luke 19:10, RSV.)

Two small Arab boys gazed upon Alfred Lord's picture, "The Lost Sheep." Pointing to Jesus, one little fellow said, "Look, He's going to fall!" Immediately his playmate said, "No, He isn't; He's holding fast."

Such childlike faith is the kind we would like to have for ourselves. Those possessed of such faith do believe that no matter what the personal dangers—no matter what the cost—Christ came to find us and save us. His lost sheep.

What a comforting thought! Christ is eager to help us find our way back to God regardless of the number of times we have strayed from His path.

"I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man comes to the Father, but by me." God sent His Son into the world to save sinners. His mission is a sacred one. Because God sent Jesus to us, He will not fail; He will hold fast.

Let nothing hinder us from believing in Christ and His power to save us and to unite us in the fellowship with all others who so believe.

Prayer

Gracious Father, we thank Thee for Thy Son, Jesus Christ. Grant us insight to sense that He is seeking us, strengthen our belief that He can save us, increase our love and encourage us to trust His guidance. In His blessed name, Amen.

Thought, For The Day

With Christ as my guide, I cannot lose my way.

There was a panel discussion between Mrs. Ruth DeGruen, Home Demonstration Agent, Mrs. June Swan of East Bethel; Mrs. Records of Norway and Mrs. Burgess of Frye. This will be heard over station WRUM this week on Farm Fare. Afterwards Dr. Saunders of Augusta spoke on "The Psychological Aspects of Obesity." Dr. Saunders said obesity was a way of life and gave the three patterns of it. First: obesity in children which formed a pattern of their future life by making food a substitute for other things. Second: obesity of teenagers. This results in the girl being a wallflower and the boy being non-athletic. Being becomes an insulation against life as well as a source for disappointments in school and life. Third: obesity of adults. This usually is due to frustration or too little exercise. Modern appliances; the control of obesity which used to eat up excess fat; and the different types of work of this day were some of the factors contributing to obesity.

Although we do not work as hard as our ancestors we still like to eat as well and as much. Eating more food than we need is the chief cause of obesity. Now days the generating diseases such as high blood pressure; hardening of the arteries and diabetes and cancer; are all made worse by, if not caused by, overweight. Dr. Saunders said he was in favor of Weight Control Clubs as at these meetings people pooled their weaknesses and gained strength from others for the task of keeping their weight at the correct level.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Smith and Mrs. of South Portland were Sunday guests of Albert Foster.

The Jackson-River Post of Locke will conduct services at the cemetery in East Bethel at 11 a. m. on Memorial Day. Let's have a good crowd.

Conservation Farming in Oxford County

by Douglas L. Marston,
Soil Conservation Service
Several conservation projects were surveyed by Soil Conservation Service personnel this past week.

This included the staking of contour guide lines on the Edmund C Smith farm in Bethel. These guide lines make it possible to establish the crop rows exactly on the level and greatly reduces water run off and erosion. A tile drainage project was staked out in an orchard for H. Warren Abbott of North Paris. Warren needs about 500 feet of tile to improve the conditions for spraying and to prevent excess water from damaging his apple trees. Warren also plans to install a large water tank in the tile line to permit collection of water for spraying purposes. A large cement tank will be constructed with a capacity of about 500 gallons of water.

A large land grading project was staked out on the William Chapman farm in Bethel. A survey will be made of the area to determine the amount of earth that has to be moved in shaping the land to permit adequate drainage.

V. A. NEWSLETTER

The widow of a World War II or Korean conflict veteran may be eligible for a GI loan if the veteran's death was service-connected and he had not already obtained a GI loan.

The Stoddard was issued today by L. Stoddard, Manager, Veterans Administration Center, Togus, Maine.

However, he added, if the widow herself is an eligible veteran, she accrues no additional GI loan rights because of her husband's death.

Deaths of World War II or Korean veterans whose death was service-connected also may obtain direct loans from VA in those areas eligible for direct loans.

Direct loans, Stoddard said, are obtainable for the purchase of a home or farmhouse. The law prohibits direct business loans.

GI loan applications from widows based on their husbands' death as a result of World War II services, must be made by July 26, 1957. For Korean Conflict eligibility, loans must be made before February 1, 1956, Stoddard said. Complete information is available at any VA office.
